

Greetings, singers! For choir you will need to do 3 things each week:

- 1.) A Weekly assignment/project 2.) Voice Lesson 3.) Daily Practice Schedule

For the weekly assignment, please pick ONE thing to do and submit by Friday at 3:00 pm. We will continue to use this weekly list going forward, so just pick your favorite for now. This is your opportunity to direct your own learning and interests. There is no way for us to replicate the beauty and benefits of singing together in real-time at this point, but we can do things to continue to thrive as musicians. Realizing that you all have different prior experiences and different ability levels, I have provided learning experiences that allow you to:

 Create * Analyze * Perform * Explore * Process * Practice * Learn from others * Learn by yourself ***

THE FOUR QUESTIONS

You will be graded on this assignment. This grade will count as your “participation” points for the week. I will send out a google form each Monday that you will use to turn-in your weekly assignment. You need to submit your work (one of the 19 choices listed below), along with answers to the following questions in the google form:

1. What did you do?
2. Why did you pick this experience?
3. How do you know if you learned anything from doing it?
4. What could you do next to extend this experience?

Be prepared to receive feedback from me and be willing to answer any additional questions I have for you based on your experience.

Here are your CHOICES (PICK ONE):

Be a conductor: Pick one of our pieces that we are working on and record a video of yourself conducting to a recording of that piece (be sure to have the audio playing out and not into headphones/earbuds). Move beyond just keeping time and conduct using gestures and cues that you believe would help a choir perform that piece. And answer the four questions (listed above).

Be a composer who uses music technology: Make a piece of music using garageband. Include a vocal line and at least three other sound layers. Tell me about your composition process either by writing up a short summary or recording an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. Your garageband piece should be at least 30 seconds long. And answer the four questions.

Be a choral composer who uses traditional notation: Make a piece of music using MuseScore (free online). Compose either a warm-up exercise (complete with lyrics) or a piece for choir (SATB with or without other instrumentation). Tell me about your composition process either by writing up a short summary or recording an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. Your piece length is determined by you. And answer the four questions.

Be a performer: Record audio or video of yourself performing your favorite song to a karaoke track. Tell me why it's your favorite song right now and why you like singing it. And answer the four questions.

Be a performer/creator: Record an audio or video of yourself performing your own harmony parts that you have made up to a recording of your favorite song. Imagine you are a back-up singer and be creative! Tell me why it's your favorite song right now and why you like it. And answer the four questions.

Be a teacher: Find a video online that would be valuable for your peers to watch this is related to singing/choir/music. Write up an explanation of why it would be beneficial for anyone in our class and what you learned from watching it. Provide some prompt questions that could help students think about the content in the video. And answer the four questions.

Conduct an interview: Ask an adult family member you're stuck with (or call someone) about their music making. Some possible questions are: Did they/do they have formal or informal music education? How do they prefer making music? What impact has music had on them? Do they think that all students should be exposed to music education? What memories do they have about music making? Write up a summary of your findings with any insights you have about this interaction or record an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. And answer the four questions.

Create a playlist: Assemble a playlist of at least ten pieces on your favorite music listening app or provide a list with links. Pick a theme for your playlist. For each piece, provide a short and specific description of what you like about that piece. Your playlist can include any medium of music (choral, vocal, instrumental, any genre). And answer the four questions.

Do a comparative analysis: Find two recordings of the same piece by two different artists (you could use one of our choral pieces we are preparing or a song recorded by two different artists.) Analyze how they are similar and how they are different and why you prefer one over the other. Write up an analysis (at least two hundred words). And answer the four questions.

Explore music careers: Consider all of the ways that you consume music now that you are social distancing. Explore and pick a music career that is responsible for bringing music into your home (i.e. sound engineer, commercial artist, film composer, jingle writer, youtube artist, etc.) Write up a short summary of what this person does, what type of schooling would be helpful for this career, skills necessary for this job, and your thoughts on that profession. And answer the four questions.

Listen to Song Exploder: Pick your favorite artist or explore someone new. Listen and respond to one of these Song Exploder episodes. <http://songexploder.net/episodes> What is their creation process like? What surprises you about this episode? Write up a summary of your findings with any insights you have about this or record an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. And answer the four questions.

Keep a listening log: Pick three pieces of music and journal about them. Include your thoughts about personal connection to the pieces, as well as insights into how the pieces are constructed. Use the Writing about Music grid to guide your listening.

Maybe consider how the pieces are similar or different to each other. Either provide your journal entries or record an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. And answer the four questions.

Make a presentation: Using a slide presentation, share with me your favorite piece of music. Format your slides like this: slide #1 title and artist, slide #2 an analysis of the piece from a construction standpoint, slide #3 why we should listen to this piece, slide #4 a link to a recording. And answer the four questions.

Pitch an idea: If you would like to create your own music learning experience, pitch your idea here. I will review your suggestion and give you the go-ahead or offer suggestions for making it viable. Be sure to make your case for why you would benefit from your own idea. You will receive credit for the assignment (not the pitch - so pitch early). And answer the four questions at the conclusion of your work.

Practice music theory skills: Pick three lessons from <http://www.musictheory.net> and complete the corresponding exercises. Screenshot your score, once you get over an 80% passing rate for each of the three exercises. Be prepared to answer a few theory questions I direct at you related to your exercises (don't have someone else do these for you, actually practice them yourself.) And answer the four questions.

Propose a choral program: Create a choral program of your own. Decide how to structure your program and pick pieces that fit your vision. Explore music publishing or distribution websites for ideas. Include at least five choral pieces. Create a slideshow with a slide for each piece that explains why you have chosen that piece and a link to a recording of it. Have one additional slide that explains your vision. And answer the four questions.

Research: Pick one of our pieces we are preparing and do some research on it. Things to consider might be intent of the composer, context of time and place, lyric interpretations, and/or structure of the composition. Write up a detailed description of the pieces that demonstrates your understanding of it from a deeper perspective. And answer the four questions.

Watch a Tiny Desk Concert: Pick your favorite artist or explore someone new. Watch and respond to one of these Tiny Desk Concerts. (One suggestion would be to watch Coldplay...they have a choir with them and it is magical!) How is their performance here different from their previously recorded versions? Does the format of the Tiny Desk Concert help or hinder their music making? <https://www.npr.org/series/tiny-desk-concerts/> Write up a summary of your findings with any insights you have about this or record an audio response that is between two and five minutes long. And answer the four questions.

Create Choreography: Choose at least one verse and chorus for one of the songs we are preparing for the spring concert and create your own choreography/dance to that verse & chorus (you can do more if you like). Video yourself performing the dance. For bonus points, teach it to another family member and have them dance with you in the video. :) And answer the four questions.

In addition to the weekly assignments listed above, you will also be doing individual voice lessons with me through Zoom video. These will be graded! I have divided up all the choir students and will email a group of you each week to have a Zoom voice lesson with me. I am keeping my normal lesson requirements. Based on the dates the Governor stated we would return to school....I will have ONE lesson with each of you via video (this is total over the next 4 weeks, NOT 1 lesson each week), and hopefully will be able to have our final voice lessons in person in May.

Finally....follow the daily choir practice schedule (on my moodle) to keep your voice in shape, review rhythms/sight reading & continue to rehearse your spring concert music so we are ready when we come back together in May!

The intent of these experiences is for you to grow as a musician. Email me with any questions you have. I'm happy to help support your learning. If you feel overwhelmed please let me know so I can help. ALL my resources are ON MY MOODLE! Please go there daily! Be well, stay home, and keep music in your life!

I MISS YOU ALL!! The choir room is so lonely without all your voices and beautiful faces!
